PRESS AND RADIO GUIDE

KEN McKENZIE, Editor

To The Press and Radio:

This booklet has been prepared in the hope that it may be of assistance to you in reporting "professional hockey", and more particularly about the games and players of the National Hockey League.

It has been assembled in compact, ready reference form with the object of supplying you with as much factual information as possible in the minimum of space consistent with easy reading and research.

This issue is restricted in general to modern hockey — 1926 to date. We hope that the research presently in progress will enable the production of All-Time records within a year.

The National Hockey League and its member clubs deeply appreciate the great contribution made by all of you in publicizing hockey and are anxious to co-operate with you in every way possible to make your assignment easier.

If there is anything further that you require in the way of publicity material, pictures or press accommodation, please communicate with this office or the Publicity Director of the appropriate club at the address listed in the Club Directory elsewhere in this booklet.

Meanwhile we trust that our cordial relations of the past may be cultivated and enhanced by this publication.

KEN McKENZIE,
Publicity Director.

THE NATIONAL HOCKEY LEAGUE

The National Hockey League, greatest international sports organization in the world was formed in Montreal on the afternoon of November 22, 1917.

It was on this afternoon in November that Frank Calder, Secretary of the old National Hockey Association called a meeting of the hockey leaders of that era. Delegates representing Ottawa, Montreal Wanderers, Montreal Canadiens and Quebec thereupon organized the National Hockey League and elected Calder President and Secretary-Treasurer of the new circuit.

The Quebec team resigned immediately and made way for a team from Toronto. The first games in this new league were played on Wednesday, December 19, 1917. The games were played on natural ice surfaces — Canadiens playing at Ottawa and Toronto at Wanderers. Toronto was the only city at that time that boasted artificial ice.

When the Montreal Wanderers' rink burned down early in the 1918-19 season, it forced one of hockey's oldest clubs to drop out of the loop.

The Quebec Club re-entered for the 1919-20 season, in turn being replaced by a team from Hamilton, Ont. Hamilton remained in the N.H.L. until 1924-25.

To illustrate the tremendous growth of professional hockey at this time it should be pointed out that Hamilton bought the Quebec franchise for a mere $5,000. In 1920 and sold it a few years later to New York Americans for $75,000. Americans entered the loop in the 1925-26 season. A second Montreal entry, the Maroons made their debut into the N.H.L. in 1924-25.

Internationalism first set into the National Hockey League in 1924-25 when Charles F. Adams of Boston and Arthur Ross secured a franchise for the Boston Bruins. The same season that Americans came into the league, 1925-26, also saw the arrival of a club from Pittsburgh known as the Pirates. In 1926-27 New York Rangers, Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Cougars, now the Red Wings, made their appearance in the N.H.L.

Ottawa, after having been a member of the League since its inception retired temporarily in 1931-32. The team resumed in 1932-33, but retired permanently at the end of the 1933-34 season. The Ottawa players were shifted to St. Louis where a club known as the St. Louis Eagles operated for one season, 1934-35, and then disbanded.

The Pittsburgh team was transferred to Philadelphia for the 1930-31 season, but withdrew after one season. Montreal Maroons, who were in the League since 1924-25 dropped out after the 1937-38 season. New York Americans finished the 1941-42 season as the Brooklyn Americans and then bowed out of the circuit. This left six strong teams intact in the National League — Montreal Canadiens, Toronto Maple Leafs, New York Rangers, Boston Bruins, Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings.

Following is a chart showing the date the six N.H.L. Clubs received their franchise:

Montreal Canadiens	November 22, 1917 (original member)
Toronto Maple Leafs	November 22, 1917 (original member)*
Boston Bruins	November 1, 1924
New York Rangers	May 15, 1926
Chicago Black Hawks	September 25, 1926
Detroit Red Wings	September 25, 1926

* Toronto entry was originally known as Arenas. On December 13, 1919 the name was changed to St. Pats, and on September 24, 1927 they became known as the Maple Leafs.

 Detroit entry was originally known as Cougars. In 1930 the nickname was changed to Falcons, and in 1933 when James Norris purchased the Club the name was changed to Red Wings.

HOW CHAMPIONSHIP RACE WAS WON

Capturing their fourth National Hockey League Championship in a row, Montreal Canadiens established a new record as the first team in history to win the League's title and the accompanying Prince of Wales Trophy for four straight years. Toronto Maple Leafs, leaders for the greater part of the campaign finished in second place in the standings, six points back of Les Canadiens.

Toronto played inspired hockey in the Stanley Cup Playoffs, and eliminated Canadiens in the finals, four games to two, to carry off hockey's most coveted trophy — the Stanley Cup, symbolic of the World's Hockey Championship.

Boston Bruins and Detroit Red Wings finished third and fourth respectively in the loop's final standings, and garnered the last two playoff berths. It was a thrilling and keenly-contested race throughout the final weeks of the schedule for the fourth and final playoff berth. New York Rangers, who had held down fourth place for the greater part of the championship race, were dislodged from their perch by Detroit in the final weeks of the season.

Following are how the Clubs stood at frequent intervals throughout the season:

WHERE THE SILVERWARE WENT IN 1946-47

STANLEY CUP	Toronto Maple Leafs
PRINCE OF WALES TROPHY	Montreal Canadiens
O'BRIEN TROPHY	Montreal Canadiens
HART TROPHY	Maurice Richard, Canadiens
BYNG TROPHY	Bobby Bauer, Boston Bruins
CALDER MEMORIAL TROPHY	Howie Meeker, Toronto
VEZINA TROPHY	Bill Durnan, Canadiens

COMMENT:

Toronto Maple Leafs won the Stanley Cup for the second time in three years.

Montreal Canadiens won the Prince of Wales Trophy for the fourth straight season. In 1945-46 they also won the Stanley Cup.

The O'Brien Trophy was won in 1945-46 by Boston Bruins.

The winners of the Hart, Lady Byng, and Calder Memorial Trophies were all won by right wing players — Richard, Bauer and Meeker all patrolling the right side of the rink.

The Vezina Trophy was captured by Bill Durnan for the fourth consecutive season, establishing a new N.H.L. record.

THE STANLEY CUP

Hockey's most prized possession, the Stanley Cup, is the oldest trophy contested for by professional athletes on the North American continent. The Stanley Cup was presented for competition seven years before the Davis Cup, symbolic of the world's tennis supremacy, made its entree into the sports sphere.

It was in 1893 that a Governor General of Canada, Lord Stanley of Preston, later the Earl of Derby, donated a trophy to be named after him and to be fought for annually by the foremost hockey clubs in the country. At first it was for amateur competition only, but in later years was played for strictly by professionals.

Lord Stanley's famous old trophy which is emblematic of the world's hockey championship came into the exclusive possession of the National Hockey League in 1926-27, following on the heels of the disbandment of the Western Canada League.

By deed of trust Lord Stanley appointed the late Mr. Sherriff Sweetland and Phillip Dansken Ross as Trustees of the Cup. On the death of Mr. Sweetland, William Foran was appointed a Trustee. Following the death of Mr. Foran less than two years ago, P. D. Ross, one of the original Trustees, and who under terms of the deed of gift is empowered to appoint a successor to the other Trustee, appointed J. Cooper Smeaton as the other Trustee of the trophy. The Stanley Cup Trustees today are P. D. Ross of Ottawa and J. Cooper Smeaton of Montreal.

Teams representing the City of Toronto have won the Stanley Cup six times. The premier Toronto club, back in 1917-18 was known as the Arenas, and it was this Toronto sextette that won the Stanley Cup the first season of the National Hockey League's existence — 1917-1918. The club's name was changed to St. Pats at the start of the 1919-20 season, and as the St. Pats won the Stanley Cup in 1921-22. From September 24, 1927 the Toronto entry was known as the Maple Leafs, and as the Maple Leafs triumphed in four Stanley Cup Playoffs.

Montreal Canadiens, a byword in the National Hockey League, have their name inscribed on Lord Stanley's battered old mug no less than more than any other club. Boston Bruins, New York Rangers and Detroit Red Wings have each won the trophy on three occasions, while the sixth team in the loop, the Chicago Black Hawks, have taken the top laurels to the Windy City twice.

Art Ross of Toronto Maple Leafs has managed four Stanley Cup titles, while Art Ross of Boston, Jack Adams of Detroit and Lester Patrick of New York Rangers each having managed three Stanley Cup Championships. Lester Patrick had two of the three clubs that he managed to the title. Lester Patrick and Dick Irvin of Montreal Canadiens have won the Stanley Cup. Day piloted home his trio of champions all with Maple Leafs, while Irvin was at the helm of two championship Canadiana squads and one Maple Leaf winner.

Following is the list of Stanley Cup Champions since the National Hockey League was formed in 1917:

a—In the spring of 1919 the Montreal Canadiens traveled to Seattle to meet Seattle, PCHL champions. After five games had been played—teams were tied at 2 wins each and 1 tie—the series was called off by the local Department of Health because of the influenza epidemic and the death from influenza of Joe Hall.

Personnel of the Stanley Cup winners and the scores by which the club won the Stanley Cup are as follows:

- 1917-18—Toronto Arenas—Rusty Crawford, Harry Meeking, Ken Randall, Corb Dennenny, Harry Cameron, Jack Adams, Alf Skinner, Harry Mummery, Happy Holmes, Reg Noble, Charlie Querrie (manager), Dick Carroll (coach), Frank Carroll (trainer).
- 1918—at Toronto—Toronto 5, Vancouver 3; Vancouver 6, Toronto 4; Toronto 6, Vancouver 3; Vancouver 8, Toronto 1; Toronto 2, Vancouver 1. Total goals, Vancouver 21, Toronto 18.
- 1918-19—No decision. Series halted by Spanish influenza epidemic, illness of several players and death of Joe Hall of Canadiens from flu. Five games had been played when the series was halted, each team having won two and tied one. The results are shown below.
- 1919—at Seattle—Seattle 7, Canadiens 0; Canadiens 4, Seattle 2; Seattle 7, Canadiens 2; Seattle 0, Canadiens 0 (20 minutes overtime); Canadiens 4, Seattle 3. Total goals, Seattle 20, Canadiens 10.

THE PRINCE OF WALES TROPHY

The Prince of Wales Trophy is presented annually to the team that finishes on top of the National Hockey League at the end of the regular schedule. Montreal Canadiens have been getting a fairly firm clasp on it lately — winning the trophy the past four seasons.

The trophy was donated by His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales in 1924. In the first season, 1924-25, it was won by Montreal Canadiens, winners of the N.H.L. playoffs, who later met the Western champs for the Stanley Cup. With the abandonment of the Western Canada League, the cup was competed for exclusively by teams in the N.H.L. in 1926-27.

From 1927-28 until the end of 1937-38 the Prince of Wales Trophy was awarded annually to the team that led the American Division of the National Hockey League. The O'Brien Trophy being presented to the winner of the Canadian Division.

Since 1937-38 when the League has functioned as one section, the trophy has been presented to the club that finished on top at the end of the regular schedule.

THE O'BRIEN TROPHY

The O'Brien Trophy has a romantic background. It was won in 1946-47 by Montreal Canadiens, a team equally rich in hockey lore. Like the Prince of Wales Trophy, the O'Brien Trophy has been awarded for a number of achievements since it was first presented to the National Hockey League.

It was awarded originally to the team winning the National Hockey Association Championship. When the N.H.A. passed out of existence in 1917 and was succeeded by the N.H.L. the O'Brien Trophy continued to be awarded to the club that won the N.H.L. Championship.

In 1927-28, when two divisions operated in the N.H.L., the O'Brien Trophy was awarded to the club that topped the Canadian Division each year, while the Prince of Wales Trophy was presented to the club that led the American Division. Upon the abandonment of two sections in the N.H.L. at the end of the 1937-38 season, it was decided to award the trophy to the eliminated team in the Stanley Cup finals.

THE HART TROPHY

The highest individual honor in hockey, the Dr. David A. Hart Trophy, was won in 1946-47 by Maurice Richard, Montreal Canadiens' scoring sensation.

This trophy was presented to the National Hockey League in 1923 by the late Dr. David A. Hart, father of the late Cecil Hart, who was a prominent figure in hockey for a number of years, to be awarded annually to "the player adjudged to be the most valuable to his team".

In winning the trophy, Richard amassed a total of 48 points out of a possible 54, and was either the first or second choice of every one of the 18 hockey writers who voted on the trophy. The dynamic French-Canadian scoring star was the first choice of 12 of the 18 writers. Each selector had three choices and points were awarded on a three-two-one basis.

Milt Schmidt, Boston Bruins' centre was runner-up for the cup with 28 points, while Chicago Black Hawks' Max Bentley, winner of the Hart Trophy in 1945-46, finished in third-place in the voting with 12 points.

Eddie Shore, Boston Bruins' great defenceman of yesteryear is the only player to win the coveted trophy four times. The late Howie Morenz, scintillating centre-ice star of former Montreal Canadiens teams, and considered one of the greatest — if not the greatest player of all-time, won the trophy on three occasions. Both Shore and Morenz are members of hockey's ultra-select Hall of Fame.

Players on Montreal Canadiens have won the trophy nine times. Every team in the League except New York Rangers have had at least one of their players capture the Cup.

Players performing for the Boston Bruins have won it six times, while Detroit, Chicago and Toronto have each had one member of their team carry off the most respected individual award in the National Hockey League.

For winning the trophy Richard received a cheque for $1,000 from the National Hockey League. This was the first time that a Hart Trophy winner was reimbursed financially by the League.

THE LADY BYNG TROPHY

The Lady Byng Trophy was won in 1946-47 by Bobby Bauer, captain and right winger of the Boston Bruins. In winning the trophy presented to the National Hockey League in 1924 by Lady Byng, wife of the then Governor-General of Canada, to be awarded annually to "the player adjudged to have exhibited the best type of sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct combined with a high standard of playing ability during the season", it marked the third time that Bauer had captured the award.

He polled a total of 37 points out of a perfect 54, with only Syl Apps, Toronto Maple Leafs' captain and centre offering any opposition whatever. Apps was runner-up with 24 points. Chicago's Max Bentley finished third with 10 points. Apps and Bentley are both previous winners of the trophy. Bauer received $1,000 from the N.H.L. for winning the trophy.

The original Lady Byng Trophy is in the possession of Frankie Boucher, Coach of New York Rangers. When Boucher won the trophy seven times while operating as a clever centre on Rangers' famed Cook-Boucher-Cook line he was given permanent custody of the silverware. A new trophy was then donated by Lady Byng in 1935.

At one time it was believed by many that the Lady Byng Trophy was a sissy award, and that a real robust player was barred from a chance of winning it. If those conditions prevailed in the past they certainly do not today. It is not a "no penalty" award and is not intended as a reward for any characteristics of a player which would reduce his effectiveness as a member of his team; or prevent him from making the maximum contribution to the welfare of his team at all times.

Bauer is a player who exemplifies all the qualities that a Lady Byng winner should possess. He is aggressive, courageous, a top scorer, a leader, and above all a gentleman at all times.

THE VEZINA TROPHY

A new record was written into the books at the close of the 1946-47 season, and Bill Durnan, goalkeeper of Montreal Canadiens was the one responsible for this event. It was Durnan who won the Vezina Trophy for the fourth season in a row to become the first goalkeeper to ever achieve this feat — which is truly remarkable.

The Vezina Trophy was donated by the late Joe Cattarinich, "discoverer" of Vezina, Leo Dandurand and Louis Letourneau, owners of Montreal Canadiens in 1926-27, in memory of their great little goalkeeper, Georges Vezina, to be awarded annually to "the goalkeeper who has played the most games for the team with the fewest number of goals scored against them."

Georges Vezina, the silent Habitant from Chicoutimi, Quebec played in goal for Canadiens for several years and was a standout performer throughout that time. He collapsed during a League game on November 28, 1925 and died a few months later.

It was only fitting that a Canadian goalkeeper won the trophy the first three years that it came into being. George Hainsworth, who holds N.H.L. records among goalkeepers for low-goals-against, and season's shutout-records, won the trophy in 1926-27, 1927-28 and 1928-29.

The only other player to win the Vezina Trophy four times was Tiny Thompson, former goaltending ace of the Boston Bruins. Thompson however, did not win the trophy four years in succession, but carried off the prized goaling award in 1929-30, 1932-33, 1935-36, and 1937-38.

In winning the Vezina Trophy, Durnan allowed 138 goals to be scored on him in 60 games for an average of 2.30 goals-against per game. For winning the trophy Durnan pocketed a cheque of $1,000 from the National Hockey League.

THE CALDER MEMORIAL TROPHY

The Calder Memorial Trophy was presented by the National Hockey League in memory of the late Frank Calder, President of the League from its inception in 1918 until his death in 1943. The trophy is awarded annually to "the player selected as the most proficient in his first year of competition in the National Hockey League". The 1946-47 winner was Howie Meeker, a 22-year-old right winger of the Toronto Maple Leafs.

From 1936-37 to 1941-42 the outstanding rookie was presented with the Calder Trophy, donated by the late N.H.L. President, but following his death, the League donated a trophy and changed the name to the Calder Memorial Trophy.

Meeker compiled a total of 49 points out of a possible 54, with only one of the 18 selectors failing to vote for him. The selectors were sportswriters and broadcasters in the six N.H.L. cities, with each selector having three choices and points being awarded on a three-two-one basis. Meeker captured top freshman honors in the circuit in a breeze. Far back in second place was Jimmy Conacher of Detroit Red Wings with 13 points, followed by Cal Gardner of New York Rangers with nine points.

The spirited, ex-war veteran was a standout performer right from the beginning of the 1946-47 season. He was the third highest scorer on the team with 27 goals and 18 assists for 45 points, and 12th highest in the entire League.

As a reward for his brilliant play in capturing the Calder Memorial Trophy, Meeker was the recipient of $1,000 from the National Hockey League.

"Hurricane Howie" is the fifth Toronto player to be picked as the outstanding first-year player. Syl Apps, Toronto captain, was the first winner of the Calder Trophy in 1936-37. Players picked as the top rookies in the League prior to the presentation of the Calder Trophy in 1936-37 were Russ Blinco, Montreal Maroons; Dave Schirner, New York Americans; and Mike Karakas, Chicago.

1936-37—S. Apps, Toronto

NATIONAL HOCKEY LEAGUE ALL-STARs

The 1946-47 All-Star team was selected by the six N.H.L. coaches. This marked the first season that the All-Star poll was conducted entirely within the National Hockey League. In previous seasons the poll was conducted by the Canadian Press. This was also the first time in history that players selected to the team were rewarded financially by the League. Each of the six players named to berths on the First Team were awarded $1,000 by the National Hockey League. In future seasons players named to the Alternate Team will receive $500 each.

The first organized All-Star selections were made in 1930-31. The Canadian Press furnished hockey writers in the N.H.L. cities with blanks, to be filled in with the first and second choices of the writers for the different positions. The players with the highest aggregate number of points then being named to the team.

Last season each coach had three choices for each of the six positions on the team. The coaches were not allowed to select players from their own teams. Points were awarded on a three-two-one basis and a perfect score was 15, which was achieved by only one player — Maurice Richard of Canadiens, who was an unanimous choice for right wing.

The six selectors were Jack Adams, Detroit; Frank Boucher, New York Rangers; Dit Clapper, Boston; Happy Day, Toronto; Johnny Gottselig, Chicago; and Dick Irvin, Montreal Canadiens.

Four of the players on the select squad were members of Montreal Canadiens, one was from Boston Bruins, and one from the Chicago Black Hawks. On the alternate team the Boston Bruins had three representatives; Detroit Red Wings two, and Chicago one.

Following is the 1946-47 N.H.L. All-Star Team and the Alternate Team together with the number of points tabulated by each player:

HAT TRICKS

There were 24 "Hat Tricks" recorded during the 180-game 1946-47 season. Montreal Canadiens topped all clubs with seven "Hat Tricks" being turned in by Canadiens' players. Detroit Red Wings, Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs were next with four, Boston Bruins had three, and New York Rangers were responsible for two.

Maurice Richard of Canadiens performed the remarkable feat more than any other player in the League. Richard racked up four "Hat Tricks". Billy Reay, Canadiens, Bobby Bauer, Boston and Roy Conacher, Detroit each accounted for two "tricks" apiece. There were 18 players who performed one or more "tricks".

Following are the players and number of times they registered the "Hat Trick".

SPECTATOR INTEREST REACHES ALL-TIME HIGH IN N.H.L.

The 1946-47 season saw spectator interest at National Hockey League games soar to its greatest heights. Attendance records have been shattered continuously during the last five seasons — but the 1946-47 season broke all previous records when a total of 2,403,110 fans paid their way into the six National Hockey League rinks to watch 180 games of the fastest-growing sport in the world.

Chicago Black Hawks fractured all attendance records for a team when they played before 500,681 onlookers in their 30 home games at the Chicago Stadium. The greatest crowd to ever witness a hockey game assembled at the Chicago Stadium on the evening of Sunday, February 23rd when a total of 20,004 turned out to see their beloved Black Hawks do battle with Boston Bruins. Chicago also held the previous high mark for a single game when 18,475 paid their way into the huge Chicago Stadium on January 20, 1946.

Chicago's tremendous drawing power at the gate in establishing a new attendance record speaks volumes for the intrinsic merits of the thrilling ice sport, for it must be remembered Chicago held down the cellar position in the League's Standings for the greater part of the season, finishing the schedule buried in last place.

The club which played to the second largest attendance was New York Rangers, who ironically enough, finished second from the last in the standings. Rangers were viewed by 429,822 enthusiasts. Toronto Maple Leafs performed before 410,107; Boston Bruins before 392,798 and Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Canadiens who play in the two smallest rinks in the circuit played before gatherings of 337,669 and 332,033 respectively.

The six clubs in the National Hockey League played before 99.6 of the rated seating capacity in the six rinks during the 180 game schedule.

In 1938-39, the last season before Canada entered the war, and when there were seven teams in the N.H.L., the total attendance for the 168 game schedule was 1,533,164. In 1941-42 the last season that there were seven teams in the League the total attendance was 1,558,436.

Following is the total paid admissions at the six rinks during the 1946-47 season; and also the total paid attendance for the League from 1942-43 up to and including 1946-47. From 1942-43 to 1945-46 the schedule consisted of 150 games. The 1946-47 season had a 180 game schedule.

Club	1946-47 Attendance

NATIONAL HOCKEY LEAGUE REFEREEING STAFF

Frank "King" Clancy — One of the greatest inspirational leaders to ever lace on a skate as a hockey player was the National Hockey League's senior referee. Born at Ottawa on February 25, 1903, "King" played his first pro game with the old Ottawa Senators. He broke in with that famed band of puck-chasers at the tender age of 17. Although only 5'7" in height and weighing 147 lbs., he was a fearless rushing defenceman, scoring 138 goals and assisting in 145 others in his 16 seasons in the N.H.L. He played nine seasons with Ottawa before Connie Smythe brought him to the Toronto Maple Leafs. Smythe paid $35,000 and two players for him. Clancy played seven seasons with the Leafs before retiring as a player. He spent two months as coach of the Montreal Maroons before turning his talents to officiating, first as a lineman and soon after as a full-fledged referee. Clancy holds the N.H.L. record of having played every position on the team in one game. It took place in 1923 in a Stanley Cup game between Ottawa and Vancouver. Married, the father of two girls and two boys "King" makes his home in his native Ottawa.

Bill Chadwick — The only American on the N.H.L. refereeing staff. Bill was born in New York on October 10, 1915, stands just over six feet in height and tips the Toledos in the neighborhood of 200. He learned his hockey in his home town and played on an All-American line with Sammy Babcock (now an N.H.L. linesman) and Stew Iglehart, the ace polo player for the New York Rovers. He spent the 1940-41 season as a N.H.L. linesman graduating to a referee's post the following season. Bill figures he travelled over 55,000 miles on the job last season. He has had lots of amusing experiences in his six years as a "ref.", and has had the backs of chairs, plenty of copper coins and even dead fish thrown at him during a game. He often finishes a game with a pocketful of pennies thrown by rabid spectators. Bill lives in Jamaica, Long Island, is married and the proud pappy of a little girl.

George Gravel — A graduate of the Junior Amateur Hockey League of Montreal, oldest hockey league in the world, George Gravel, sole French-Canadian member of the N.H.L. whistle-tooting department. George was born in Montreal on October 20, 1910 and still resides in his native heath, being employed by the C.P.R. in the off-season. A former left-winger in the once popular Railway-Telephone League in Montreal, he also refereed in the Quebec Senior Hockey League. He was a linesman in the N.H.L. for four seasons and last season completed his fourth as a referee in hockey's big tent. George is an outstanding baseball umpire in the summer months, being rated one of the best in Canada. Married, he stands 5'7½" and weighs 178 lbs.

George Hayes is the latest addition to the N.H.L.'s officiating ranks. The powerfully-built arbitrator made his debut as a N.H.L. referee on November 27, 1946. He had been engaged as a linesman during the earlier part of the season. Born in Montreal on June 20, 1917, he now makes his home at Ingersoll, Ont., where he spends the summer months umpiring baseball and softball games. During the 1945-46 season he worked a total of 105 games which is believed to be some sort of a record. He handled 101 games in the O.H.A., two in the Toronto Major Commercial League and two in the Memorial Cup finals. Before taking up hockey refereeing in 1940 he played hockey, baseball and football. George stands 6'2", weighs over 200 lbs., is single, and his hobby is collecting sports items, such as clippings and pictures, etc.
